

“RAINIER TO EVEREST”

A Slide Show Presentation
with Peter Whittaker

Standing at 14,410 feet, Mount Rainier is described as the most physically demanding climb in the lower 48 states. Peter Whittaker first climbed Rainier at the age of 12, and has since reached the summit 233 times. Rainier is the ideal training ground for the world's highest mountains including Everest. Though it is less than half the height, it's 26 glaciers rival the crevasses, seracs, and ice found on Everest.

Join Peter as he shares his early years on Rainier and later expeditions on all seven continents.
